++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Breezy and cold, cloudy and unsettled.

Today:
A calm start to the day but becoming breezy. Generally rather cloudy, with bands of blustery showers merging into longer spells of rain, these perhaps wintry over hills. Feeling cold but fresh away from showers. Maximum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Tonight:
Becoming mostly clear and dry with a light breeze. Some low cloud lingering over the Pennines. Cold and frosty overnight especially at height, where there is a risk of ice. Minimum temperature -2 deg C (28 deg F).

Thursday:
A mostly dry and bright start, though cold initially with a frost. Winds will be mostly light before a band of rain and strong winds approaches from the west later. Maximum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Mostly dry Friday with isolated showers and a northwesterly breeze. A dry start Saturday but heavy rain arriving from the west later as winds strengthen. Likely cloudy with rain Sunday.
